Proclaiming (the Word)

Call to Confession Becca Fletcher

Dear God of compassion, we acknowledge that we are a wounded people. We know that you are a wounded healer, the great physician, and your desire is to heal us. But you also require that we confess our sins, acknowledge our brokenness, and admit that we have tried to fix ourselves apart from you. We also confess that we have not seen every occasion of the gathering of Christians as an opportunity for true worship of the living God. Forgive us, O merciful God, for our lack of faith, and strengthen us to trust you for our healing, and for the restoration and reconciliation of the world to yourself. Amen.
